

Thematic Response

In many of our relationships people often interact with us according to who and what they believe us to be, or how they believe we should be. This occurrence is the same for all peoples in every walk of life. Even though Kandake is serving in her father's stead as the queen of Nubia, she is faced with such an occurrence.

What expectations did others have for Kandake and how did she address them?

Cite a time when others have incorrectly assessed you. How can you respond in a manner that corrects their assumptions yet maintains your character and integrity?